Forecast for Saturday 01 May 2021

Weather: A cold start with some short lived shallow fog patches in the valleys around dawn. Another rather chilly day with sunny spells and scattered slow moving showers, these most frequent and locally heavy during the middle of the day and early afternoon, and occasionally falling as sleet or wet snow above 800m. The showers will die away late afternoon onwards leaving a dry evening with often clear skies.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: Generally 90% or better, but 70% for a time around dawn, and significantly lower in any slow moving showers.

Visibility: Generally very good with excellent clarity, but locally poor in valley fog first thing, with shallow banks of cloud briefly forming on some valley slopes around 400m as any fog lifts and clears. Some sharp deteriorations in showers when cloud may lower to 700-900m, covering the summits, and very poor in any summit sleet and snow.

Meteorologist's View

Feeling unseasonably cold on the summits, but despite that there will be some strong spells of sunshine at times in the afternoon, and sun protection is advised.

Forecast for Sunday 02 May 2021

Weather: A chilly and bright start with some short lived patches of fog in valleys around dawn. Sunny spells and only isolated showers through the day, with the showers falling as sleet and wet snow on summits above 900m. The showers will fade away during the evening leaving often clear skies

Maximum wind: West to southwest 15mph.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 80% or better throughout.

Visibility: Generally very good with excellent clarity but poor in any valley fog first thing, which will lift soon after dawn into shallow banks of cloud on slopes around 400m before clearing. Deteriorating to briefly moderate at times in showers with cloud lowering to 900-1000m, and very poor in any summit sleet and snow.

Temperature: Valleys: Zero Celsius becoming plus 9 Celsius.

At 800m: Plus 1 Celsius.

Freezing level: 900m to 1000m

Wednesday	Remaining cold with occasional showers, these merging together at times give some longer spells of rain and summit snow at times throughout the day. Moderate winds.
